

GENERAL LEE'S BILL OF FARE.—The Richmond correspondent of the Mobile Advertiser gives the following about Gen. Lee's mode of living:

"In Gen. Lee's tent meat is eaten but twice a week, the General not allowing it oftener, because he believes indulgence in meat to be criminal in the present straitened condition of the country. His ordinary dinner consists of a head of cabbage boiled in saltwater, and a pone of corn bread. In this connection rather a comic story is told. Having invited a number of gentlemen to dine with him, Gen. Lee, in a fit of extravagance, ordered a sumptuous repast of cabbage and middling. The dinner was served, and behold! a great pile of cabbage and a bit of middling about four inches long and two inches across. The guests, with commendable politeness, unanimously declined middling, and it remained in the dish untouched. Next day General Lee remembering the delicate tid-bit which had been so providentially preserved, ordered his servant to bring that "middling." The man hesitated, scratched his head, and finally owned up.—"De fac is, Massa Robert, dat ar middlin' was borrid middlin'; we all did'n had nar spec; an I done paid it back to de man whar I got it from." General Lee heaved a sigh of deepest disappointment, and pitched into his cabbage."

It is said the price of meat is likely to become much lower than it has been. According to the New York World

"The extravagant prices which have been asked for beef, mutton, and pork, has led to an enforced abstinence of flesh diet to such an extent that the drovers find a great falling off in their custom, and as a consequence, at the last market prices were lower and the trade was very dull. The opening of the navigation westward, also aids in bringing cattle to the market which have till now, been kept back."

Warm weather is a good time for everybody to reduce the quantity of animal food consumed. If the price of meat compels the poor man to eat less meat than before, the health of the rich man will be the gainer by practising the same economy.

INSECT ON FRUIT TREES.—A correspondent of an agricultural paper says: Much has been said about destroying insects on fruits trees. I have tried a good many ways but have found none so good as the following:—For a common sized plum tree fill six or eight vials about two-thirds full of water, well sweetened with loaf sugar, and hang them on different parts of the tree about the time it is blossoming, and the insects will take that before the fruit. I have filled vials twice in one season, and found among them hundreds of insects such as I never saw or heard of before.

The Washington Star of yesterday says:—"Among the captures made by the Confederate guerrillas in their last raid upon the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Piedmont, yesterday morning, was the capture of Mr. Wadsworth, an opposition member of Congress from Kentucky who was held for some three hours and then let go, in (to Mr. W.) blissful ignorance of the value of their prize. We hear also that a hundred soldiers of our Veteran Reserve or Invalid Corps were taken on the same train with their arms in their hands but without a single cartridge in gun or cartridge box.

The Jury of inquest in the case of Miss Maggie Duvall, in Washington, have returned a verdict of death from "pleuro pneumonia." The verdict was founded upon the result of a post mortem examination, which proved nothing about abortion.

The last New York quotations represent the price of beef as declining.

NEW AND IMPROVED INVENTION OF ARTIFICIAL CHEOPLASTIC BONE TEETH WITHOUT METAL PLATE OR CLASPS.

DRS. SIGESMOND & HAYWARD, 230 Pennsylvania Avenue, between 12th and 13th streets, Washington, D. C.

CALLS the attention of the public to the following advantages of his improved system:

1. The teeth of their manufacture will never corrode nor change color by any acids, being three-fourths lighter than any other.
2. No teeth or roots need be extracted, as the artificial ones can be inserted over them.
3. The roots will be made inoffensive and never to ache.
4. No temporary teeth are needed, as permanent ones can be made immediately, thereby preserving the natural expression of the face, which under the old system is frequently disfigured.
5. This work has been fully tested over five years by many of the first chemists and physicians of this country.

Drs. S. & H., have also invented a white un-destructive metal filling, with which the most sensitive teeth can be filled without pain, and can build up a perfect sound tooth on any side roots, which will last through lifetime.
